Cattlemen's Fellowship Program Success

Cattlemen's fellow takes new job with Colorado Coalition of Land Trusts

ARVADA, Colo. (Feb. , 2017) – One of the first fellows to participate in the Colorado Cattlemen's Association and Colorado Cattlemen's Agricultural Land Trust joint fellowship program has completed the fellowship and taken on a position with the Colorado Coalition of Land Trusts.

Michael-Anne Goodart was a 2015 Animal Science graduate of Colorado State University and began the Cattlemen's fellowship in June 2016. Her time with Cattlemen's built on her previous knowledge of the agricultural industry and exposed her to the conservation side of agriculture and ranching. During her six-month fellowship with Cattlemen's, Goodart experienced both the technical aspects and personal side of the industries.

Goodart's new role at the Colorado Coalition of Land Trusts will be as Membership and Communications Coordinator. The Coalition is a statewide membership organization that represents the land conservation community. In her new position with the Coalition, Goodart will focus on planning and coordinating the Coalition's annual Conservation Excellence Conference, managing communications, aiding in grant writing and working with membership renewal. Michael-Anne hopes she can continue her passion for agriculture and build on the skills she gained through her fellowship, while working at the Coalition.

The Cattlemen's fellowship program was established in 2016 as a way to introduce recent college graduates to both the conservation and agricultural industries. The goal of the program is to provide further connections and opportunities for graduates to engage in this vital community of Colorado.
